PENNSYLVANIA AMERICAN WATER ANNOUNCES CUSTOMER APPRECIATION EVENT AT CARNEGIE SCIENCE CENTER

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (February 7, 2019) – Pennsylvania American Water announced today that the company is hosting a customer appreciation event March 2 – 3, 2019, at Carnegie Science Center. All Pennsylvania American Water customers are eligible for a discounted general admission of $5 per person for up to four guests during the two-day event.

“We are proud to partner with Carnegie Science Center to provide our customers with an affordable opportunity to experience this world-class facility,” said Pennsylvania American Water External Affairs Manager Gary Lobaugh. “This event will let Pennsylvania American Water showcase the critical role water plays from the source to the spigot through various exhibits at Carnegie Science Center.”

Pennsylvania American Water is the sponsor of the real-time data monitor in the “H2Oh!: Why Our Rivers Matter” exhibit gallery, which presents data from river monitoring systems including temperatures, pH, and water level from local rivers.

Visitors also will have the opportunity to meet members of the Pennsylvania American Water team on March 2, who will be there to answer questions and offer a variety of water-related activities and giveaway items. Customers must present a Pennsylvania American Water bill to receive the discounted admission. The reduced entrance fee is not valid with any other offer or group visits.

Carnegie Science Center is located at One Allegheny Avenue, Pittsburgh, PA 15212 and open to visitors seven days per week from 10 am – 5 pm.
